October Bulletin Issued by the Board

AUGUSTA, October 18 In the Bulletin for October, we have sought to bring out information of a somewhat general character, regarding the season as a whole and to make a general summing up of all the facts which might be of interest for us to consider, as lessons for future use, as well as for their historical value

We have carried the bulletins one month later in the season than usual for the purpose of obtaining accurate statements of the final condition of the growing crops

This will be the last regular issue, but as several correspondents have suggested that one be issued sometime in the winter or early spring for the purpose of getting at the general practice of preparing and fertilizing the ground for crops and of sowing and planting, it will probably be done making such additions, as may at that time seem to be of value

We wish to thank our correspondents for their full and valuable returns to the questions for this bulletin, also those who have sent in replies from having seen the questions in the papers

More replies have come in than to any previous bulletin, most of them being accompanied by remarks and suggestions which are very valuable and which will be carefully studied, and some of them embodied in the bulletins for 1894, which we hope, to make of still greater value than those of 1893

The following is the list of questions

1 Yield of sweet and yellow corn as compared with last year?

2 Did the corn crop suffer from early frosts?

3 Yield of potatoes as compared with last year?

4 Has the rust injured the potato crop to any extent?

5 What varieties of potatoes have been freest from rust and which have suffered the most, the early or late planted?

6 Any indications of rot?

7 Have any farmers in your vicinity used any preparation for preventing rust, and if so with what success?

8 Give market prices of corn potatoes, hay, apples or any other farm crops

9 What is your idea of the value of the weather crop bulletins, you have been receiving weekly?

Replies to question one indicate that the yield of both sweet and yellow corn is about 10 to 20 per cent less compared with last year. From several localities where corn canning shops have been running for the first time this season, come reports that farmers are much pleased with the crop and as shops are being built quite rapidly, and there is a disposition to study deeper into the questions pertaining to corn culture, we look to see more planted in the State next season both for canning and for ensilage than for many years

Corn suffered but very little in any section of the State from early fall frosts, the decrease from 1892, being almost entirely due to the drought which was very general and from which plains land suffered severely

There is but little corn planted in Washington county and none in Aroostook except for ensilage The introduction of the silo into this county promises to do very much to the food producing value of the soil as corn will make here sufficiently to make good ensilage

From replies to questions 3 4 5 6 and 7, we find the yield of potatoes to be 25-30 as compared with last year Only in one county, (Sagadahoc) does the yield go below 1892 while in Aroostook, Hancock, Knox Lincoln, Somerset Waldo and Washington counties the yields are very much higher.

Correspondents report but very little loss from rust, not nearly as much as usual while the almost universal statement is that the quality of the potato is very fine

The varieties of potatoes suffering the least from rust seem to be the late growing ones, such as are usually grown for the large markets while the general opinion is, that the earlier planted ones were also favored although some correspondents mention the fact that the later planted ones have been the freest from rust

Several speak of slight indications of rot, it would seem that there may be more than an average tendency in this direction, although some early potatoes placed in cellars some time ago are reported to be in fine condition and perfectly free from any appearance of the disease

Only one report of the using of rust preventive comes to the office and that shows so favorable results that we give it entire It is from F Rand, foreman for David McPherson Presque Isle and comes to the office by hand of Delmo Morro

The following is the reported market prices of farm crops as gathered from replies to question eight, and averaged by counties

Androscoggin—Corn 5?c potatoes 6?c, hay $16 00, apples $2 00, sweet corn, 2c per pound

Aroostook—Potatoes 41c hay $11 25 oats 3?c, potatoes for starch, 20c

Cumberland—Corn 62c potatoes ?c hay, $15 50, sweet corn, 2c per pound, oats, 45c, dairy butter 25c

Franklin—Corn, 63½c potatoes, 56c hay $13 50 dairy butter, 21½c, sweet corn, 2c per pound

Hancock—Corn 60c, potatoes, 43c hay $13 50, oats, 45c beets, 40c turnips 40c, cabbage 1c per pound butter 25c

Kennebec—Corn, 60c, potatoes, 53c, hay, $14 oats 40c barley, 60c, beans, $2 15

Knox—Corn, 61c, potatoes, 55c, hay, $17 beans, $2 50, butter 23c, oats, 50c, cranberries $3 bushel

Lincoln—Corn, 60c potatoes 63c hay, $13 60 sweet corn 2c per pound, eggs, 20c

Oxford—Corn, 61c, potatoes 51c, hay, $16 50 sweet corn 2c per pound, oats, 40c, butter 23c

Penobscot—Corn, 62c potatoes, 44c, hay, $13 70, butter, 20c, eggs, 20c, beans $2, oats, 40c

Piscataquis—Corn 60c potatoes 42c hay, $12 30, oats 37c, beans, $2.25

Sagadahoc—Corn, 66c, potatoes, 77c, hay $13, butter, 27c, eggs, 20c

Somerset—Corn, 60c potatoes, 50c hay $13, oats 41c beans $2 10, barley, 60c

Waldo—Corn, 63c, potatoes, 40c, hay, $11, beans, $2 25

Washington—Corn, 62c, potatoes, 48c, hay, $15, butter, 25c

York—Corn, 66c potatoes, 65c, hay, $17 60, butter, 25c, eggs, 25c

The average of the principal crops, taking the State as a whole is corn, 61c, potatoes, 51c, hay, $14 25, butter, 23c oats 41c, beans, $2 21, barley, 60c, eggs, 20c, sweet corn, 2c per pound

There is no established market yet for apples, but the present indications are that they will be very high A careful study of the prices in different localities, with an idea of market facilities and nearness to manufacturing centers, will prove of value Several correspondents report home raised yellow corn as selling in their locality, for one dollar per bushel, which is far above the market for western corn

Complaints still come in of the damages caused by the horn fly, and we trust some remedy may be brought out before another summer, which will prove effectual, and not injurious to stock

Replies to question nine show that one hundred and twenty one correspondents consider the weekly weather crop bulletin valuable, while twenty two think it of no value, many speaking in high terms of its usefulness Under these circumstances they will, without doubt, be continued next year, and we hope to have them very much improved and enlarged.

The remarks of our correspondents as arranged by counties, will be found to be of much value, and we ask their careful perusal

Aroostook

Houlton—As to question four, the rust did not affect the tops of my potatoes till after the frost had blackened the leaves, and I was congratulating myself that I would have no rot to contend with, but when I commenced to dig, I found nearly one-quarter affected with the rot, or nearly as bad as other years when the ... [illegible] ... to contend with all the blights and varying seasons to which our crops are subject IRA J PORTER

Presque Isle—Bordeaux mixture for potato rust, statement of A Rand, foreman for David McPherson

Bordeaux mixture was applied to fourteen rows of Hebrons once when the tops covered the ground Was applied with hand sprinkler no extra pains being taken to wet all the tops Fourteen rows treated remained green when those treated were killed by rust Potatoes were larger and consequently the yield greater on rows treated There were a few rotten potatoes on those rows On potato patch not treated only one-half the crop was fit for the market the remaining half were affected by rot and small ones Total yield, one hundred barrels per acre Before harvest, four hills were dug from those treated and one rotten potato found One hill was dug from those not treated and four rotten potatoes found D. MOORE

Fort Fairfield—The Bordeaux mixture I used on about six acres with satisfactory results The part of the field sprayed remained green till killed by the frost about ten days after the others were dead A portion of under leaves blighted but I think had the application been made ten days earlier and repeated no indications of rust would have appeared The experience of two of my neighbors was the same as my own So well satisfied are they with the results that the experiments will be tried more thoroughly another season The only difficulty is to thoroughly spray as the tops grow very rank in this section We also observed that those sprayed were much more free from affected potatoes H C TOWNSEND

Presque Isle—The harvest now nearly completed proves that the season has been a fruitful one in the Aroostook valley The lack of snow last winter and the dry weather in the early part of June reduced the hay crop somewhat but much more was cut than was expected and was of very best quality and is cured in fine condition The grain crop was very large and the yield per acre fully up to the average if not better The conditions for the potato crop have been favorable throughout the season The beetles were quite plentiful in many places but yielded to proper treatment No drouth or excessive moisture interfered with the growth of the plants the rust did not appear until after the tubers were well grown and nearly matured and the result is a most bountiful crop of excellent potatoes No violent times plenty disturbances have occurred during the season the financial depression, so severe in other sections, has not been felt here and on the whole the farmers of Aroostook have great cause to rejoice that their lines have fallen in pleasant places EDWARD WIGGIN

Caribou—I can say that I like the crop bulletins very much and have looked for their coming with interest It is a pleasure to know how others are managing their flocks and herds and crops in general, and I sincerely hope our most worthy Secretary will be able to send out the bulletins in 1894 and that I shall be here to receive it but in the long winter months that we must pass through before that time I hope we shall hear from those who can help to make the crop bulletin for 1894 so interesting through the columns of the Maine Farmer, and by so doing help to make the long winter evenings both pleasant and profitable DANIEL M LIBBY

Caribou—Early planted potatoes were well matured before frost appeared so the yield is good While the weather crop bulletins have been of interest to me I think they would be of much more interest to the farmers of this section, if we could get a little more information in regard to the potato crop in our State as well as some other sections, in August or between the government report for August 18th and September 1st H S HARDISON

Smyrna Mills—Corn not grown here as a field crop, so do not report it Rust held off a little later than usual but an early frost killed potatoes on low lying farms Up to date but little rot on dry gravelly soil, but recent wet weather is causing potatoes to rot on moister or low land Think it would be of value to print crop prospects for 1894 early next season before spring work begins Every farmer knows by the end of his fall ploughing about what amount of land he will devote to any particular crop and will be able to report by that time A J STARBIRD

Penobscot

North Newport—The season has been cold and dry from April to the last of August, with more grasshoppers than any season since 1871 Early grain a fair crop, late grain a failure Potatoes small but sound and good quality On the whole think we have about two-thirds of a crop JOHN RICHARDSON

Lincoln—I am just home from a trip to the western part of the State Hence the delay in answering Wherever I went I found the apple crop very short but the crop better than last year, corn and beans good, and also grain and hay The market gardeners agree with me that everything was at least two weeks later than usual Good dairy butter is finding creamery butter and eggs are selling for prices that are fairly remunerative Milch cows are bringing better prices than last year, also beef cattle but horses are a drug TIMOTHY JOHNSON

Kenduskeag—I think the season just closing has been a fairly successful one in this section I think our crops have been up to an average (and some of them more) with exception of the apple crop that has been very light I hope you will be able in your bulletins for 1894 to show the farmers the importance of using better tools I think the farmers make a great mistake in not using the best tools that are in the market The work can be done better and very much cheaper with tools than by hand W N PAGE

Charleston—Three terrible pests have tried and I think fully succeeded in taking the lion's share of our profits this year Horn fly, grub worms and grasshoppers Increasing cold weather has thankfully checked the fly, for it was a very unpleasant sight to see the poor cattle with heads and tails almost continually going from side to side in the vain attempt to keep them off The grub worms work under the sod and in some fields in this vicinity have taken every green thing left by the grasshoppers Happily the ravages of the worms are confined to a very narrow limit They seem to be passing slowly from west to east, over the high lands of Garland and Charleston For twelve years they have been with us every three years, as it takes them that time to go the rounds from June beetle to grub worm They eat from August to the next June except, of course, the winter months, when they go into the ground at a great depth for their protection We are powerless to fight them, but will not you or some one of your able correspondents give us an effectual remedy for the horn fly, that we may be all ready to meet it next season A W KING.

Newport—Sweet corn has suffered from dry weather and many pieces were eaten badly by worms just after coming out of the ground Potatoes generally are good, have been free from rust and rot. Grass fields are being injured very much by the large white grub, some pieces being eaten so that the turf can be rolled up like a carpet Is there any remedy for them? Our best grass has suffered the most and we don't really want to plow it at the present time Grasshoppers have been the thickest in this section for many years I wish that the bulletins could be continued through winter, with questions in regard to winter work, care of stock of all kinds, manner and amount of feed to be given, cost and income from same, etc C G BRACKETT

Bangor—This has been a remarkable season as we had it very dry when we should have had rain and too much rain when farmers wished to harvest But on the whole I think that farmers are having very fair crops with the exception of apples. They are almost a failure in my section, and what we have are very wormy Oats are a little light on account of the dry weather, but a very fair stand of straw, also the same with barley. But on the whole, I think we are doing pretty well, as we get fair prices for everything that we have to sell. JAMES S STAPLES

Dexter—At this date, October 3, nearly all crops have been harvested so that we ... [illegible]

Unintelligible Legislation

Editor Whig and Courier

One cannot stand in front of the capitol at Washington without being impressed by the magnificence of its proportions and at the recent celebration of its 100th anniversary, the speech makers of the day laid stress and justly so, on our national prosperity, declaring that no nation on earth has made such a notable record in so short a time To all this we heartily concede, and for it we are truly thankful but to rest on past achievements would mean retrogression

Our national Congress is an august body beyond all question and were it not the privilege of one of the people to address himself to the people we would shrink from making any observations which might be considered disparaging to such an elect body, but in perusing the course pursued by Congress since the seventh day of last August, we feel a slight sense of humiliation in view of the result thus far and are ready to declare ourselves in favor of certain changes in the rules of procedure both in the House and the Senate—changes which seem absolutely imperative Time and space forbid details beyond the mention of one or two points just now and we shall confine ourselves to these in the briefest manner possible

Talking Against Time

If there be one thing more absurd than another in these days of concentrated thought and quick action, it is the waste of time so observable in legislative bodies and never was this more apparent than within the last few days in the National Senate We would not have debate curtailed, nor would we force a moment beyond the diminishing of individual privileges but are we not correct in saying that common sense is one of the fundamental principles in a good government? If this be true what shall we say of the Senator from Nebraska who spoke against time for over fourteen hours with no other object than to preclude the possibility of its being consumed by others The consumption of time to defeat a measure should be relegated to the Norman Period when men had no other object in view than simple defeat, but when the eyes of the whole nation are fixed in one direction looking for rapid intelligent solution of momentous problems, it is discouraging to say the least, to have our legislators adhere strictly to the letter of the law rather than to its spirit Instance the Senator from Nevada Surely we contend—a force the curtailing of debate, but for the man of such rules as will to specify the mode of procedure by which ... the rules now stand the master part at ... to be ... the will of those who lack discretion ... infinite length of time ... too short, men are too busy and the time is too expensive to permit it so

A Quorum

As the rule now stands, it is optional with any member of each congressional branch to demand the "roll call" and from the experience of the past few days we have reason to believe that this rule has been converted into an intrigue to absorb time and thereby kill the good the man having the floor ... may be as guilty of ... as ... this rule would be difficult to abolish, but as the matter now stands it is being used as an ... and is proving a hindrance ... with respect to progress ... the lack of a quorum is directly traceable to delegates ... absent ... if there be one thing more humiliating than another, to national pride, it is to see the Speaker, or President of the Senate compelled to force the attendance of delinquents Now we are of the opinion that if the rule relative to voting were amended, the question of quorum would take care of itself.

Amendments

Another rule to which we wish to call your attention—a rule, which is upon ... the least, is that which interrupts the gentleman having the floor by the introduction of amendments to measures not ... foreign to the subject under discussion, and those who have closely followed the doings of Congress since August 7th will not be slow to perceive the abuse to which this rule has been subjected We regret to touch upon or cast reflections upon the doings of Congress, but we feel impelled at this time to call the attention of your readers to the aforesaid legislative defects hoping that it may act as a slight incentive to reform, both in method and spirit This last rule could easily be amended without friction and would be helpful, especially to the gentleman having the floor.

Yours faithfully,

AN EAMANSIE

Whig and Courier.

BY BOUTELLE BROTHERS.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle Brothers, and communications intended for publication should be addressed: "Editor of Whig and Courier."

MONDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1893.

Ring Down the Curtain.

On Saturday the Boston Herald scouted the idea of any compromise on the silver question and declared the President would not listen to such a suggestion. In its Sunday edition, however, it gives the "details of the proposed compromise" and mildly remarks that the "President is counted on to sign it."

For weeks the Cleveland press has been filled with announcements that compromise meant abject surrender, and that the President stood as solid as the rock of Gibraltar between the people and the flat ideas of his party. In this way the farce has gone on all these weeks, until at last Senator Gorman has decided that the time is ripe for the promulgation of his programme, when, instead of the promised vote, we are told not by the enemies of the President, but by his most earnest champions, that he is going to strike his colors, and is confidently "counted on to sign" the surrender.

If the Gorman programme is carried out it will only afford another illustration of the utter insincerity and dishonesty of the Democratic treatment of great public questions. From Maine to California the Democratic press has insisted that the prevailing business depression was due solely to the effects of the Sherman law. Every other consideration has been waived aside as of secondary importance to the immediate repeal of this law, which, it has been contended, was the one step necessary to a restoration of confidence and a return of prosperity. The party platform, which the New York World recently declared was a higher law than any caucus, denounced the silver purchasing act as "a cowardly makeshift, fraught with possibilities of danger" and demanded its "speedy repeal."

A Congress Democratic in both branches was called together by a Democratic President for the express purpose of repealing this law, but after a session extending over a period of ten weeks, during which time the repeal bill was saved from defeat in the House by the Republican minority, charged with no responsibility in the matter of shaping legislation, the battle is to be practically abandoned by the Democratic majority in the Senate, where the President and his party could have had a vote on the bill at any time and passed it, because the Republicans with very few exceptions stood ready to support the Administration in the Senate, just as they had done in the House.

After all the bitter denunciation of the law as alone responsible for the existing business troubles, the very party that has so zealously preached this doctrine now proposes to postpone for at least a year its repeal, with the addition that what is called the seignorage shall be coined, amounting to between seventy-five and one hundred million dollars, with the difference that there last millions are flat silver certificates, the bullion having already been pledged for outstanding certificates. This programme is, of course, a complete exposure of the dishonesty of the Democratic arraignment of that law as the source of all business ills, and leaves the party in its favorite attitude of playing a bunco game with the people.

What It Has Cost.

The people of the country have had ample opportunity to appreciate the cost of the "change" in the administration of affairs at Washington, but the American Economist has reduced it to figures. It has taken an industrial census and the reports now on hand and classified number 684 obtained from forty-four different States. The exhibit shows that where 169,423 hands were employed during the week ending November 5, 1892, there were but 67,660 hands employed in the same business during the week ending September 2, 1893, or that 101,763 people, representing 60½ per cent. of those employed last year, were out of work at the beginning of last month.

In the matter of wages it appears that where $1,762,288 were paid out during the week ending November 5, 1892, there were but $549,437 paid out during the week ending September 2, 1893, a loss of 69 per cent. In the disbursement and circulation of money at the beginning of last month, as compared with the week previous to the election of President Cleveland and a Congress pledged to wipe out the protective tariff.

Besides this loss of $1,202,851 every week in wages, it is also shown that there has been a decrease of 47.2 per cent. in the volume of business transacted in the States from which reports have been received. It further appears that where the average amount of wages earned by each person during the week ending November 5th, 1892, was $10.43, the average wage rate last month was but $8.08 for each person working, thus making a decrease of $2.35 in the average weekly earnings of each person. The returns from the forty-four States may be summed up as follows:

- Decrease in labor since November 5, 1892, 60 1-2 per cent.
- Decrease in wages since November 5, 1892, 69 per cent.
- Decrease in business since November 5, 1892, 47.2 per cent.
- Number of hands out of work compared with 1892, 101,763.
- Total weekly loss in wages compared with 1892, $1,202,851.38.
- Average decrease in the rate of wages compared with 1892, $2.35 per week.

The business men and the working men who voted for a "change" last fall may study these figures as affording a sad illustration of the result of their folly. Experience is a hard but most effective teacher. The people were warned of the consequences of a Democratic victory, but declined to listen to reason. They stood by the Democratic party which has brought about the very condition against which they were warned.

Silly Bluster.

Some of the Southern Senators seem to be determined to enroll themselves on the pages of history as natural born asses. Mr. Morgan, of Alabama, whose pretended love for the constitution of the United States did not deter him from participating in an unholy revolution against the authority of said constitution, is a conspicuous example of the class referred to. When he rose in his seat the other day and remarked, after violating not only so-called Senatorial courtesy but all rules of common decency in debate, that he was personally responsible for what he said either in or out of the Senate, he indulged in an exhibition of pugilistic propensities for which the bar-room may not have been the scene, as has been intimated by the Boston Herald which said he was not quite himself on this occasion, but which was more appropriate to the bar-room than the United States Senate chamber. ...

New York Sun, when asked what is to prevent the Vice President from counting a quorum and thus putting an end to the obstruction of business: "I do not believe he would live to accomplish it. Certainly he would not be permitted to do such a thing." And yet it has been done and at a time when this same class of Southern fire-eaters were making exactly the same kind of talk. In the House of Representatives of the Fifty-first Congress the Southern members indulged their propensity for swagger to their hearts' content. It was threatened that the Speaker would be "pulled from the chair," and the present Speaker of the House, the present Senator from Texas, then a Representative, and numerous other Southern members went into heroics about "dying in the last ditch," "walking over their dead bodies" and much more stuff of an equally nonsensical character, but no attention was paid to it. That sort of talk is the regular stock in trade of the average Southern bourbon. It is aired on all possible occasions, but it is for home consumption and means nothing.

If Messrs. Morgan and Harris really want to learn how easy it is to secure majority rule by strictly constitutional methods, they have only to turn to the journal of the House in the Fifty-first Congress. The constitutional majority of that body controlled legislation and no one was hurt. We have no idea that Vice-President Stevenson will resort to these constitutional methods, but should he do so he would be in no danger of personal violence from the Southern bourbons. Their bark is a great deal worse than their bite.

Mr. Jones' Speech Will Be "Continued in our Next."

House Passes Bill for Revenue Cutter for New England Coast.

Senate

WASHINGTON Oct 21 Mr Peffer closed his speech on the repeal bill at 1 20 with an expression of apprehension that "perhaps some Senator might think he had occupied a great deal more time in discussing the question than he should have done"

Mr Jones, Republican, of Nevada then proceeded to address the Senate in continuation of the speech begun by him last week—this being the third installment of it His argument was very close and forcible and received great attention Mr Jones was asked by Mr Voorhees whether it would be agreeable to him to yield as he could not conclude this evening

"I cannot conclude for two or three more days" Mr Jones answered "I have not the slightest desire to occupy the time of the Senate but I wish to present one phase of our side of the question in consecutive form and I hope that at a subsequent period I shall be able to continue my argument"

The Senate at 1 [illegible], after a short executive session took a recess till 10 A M Monday next The executive session was devoted to a few minor new nominations overlooked yesterday The nomination of Mr Hornblower to be associate Justice of the Supreme Court has not, it is understood, been reported by the Judiciary Committee

HONOR FOR THE DEAD.

Obsequies of the Late Field Marshal MacMahon

PARIS, Oct 22 The body of Field Marshal MacMahon was brought at 9 this morning from the vault of the Church of the Madeleine to [illegible] of the gallery beneath the peristyle and placed on the catafalque draped with the tricolor The building was draped in black The soldiers guarding the catafalque were taken from the infantry regiments which the Field Marshal commanded more than a generation ago The mourners arrived slowly

Army officers were placed at the right of the bier and civilians at the left A few priests came in and retired and some ten or eleven [illegible] walked in behind them Outside a great crowd watched and waited in the rain, while far down the street stretched motionless double lines of infantry, keeping the way clear for the departure of the body from the church The hearse was drawn by six horses On each side were carriages

Filled With Wreaths

A carriage was driven up hastily and Count Muenster, the German Ambassador His head uncovered, stepped out an officer of the 2d hussars followed and behind him were two giant officers of the white cuirassiers A huge carrying the Emperor William's wreath was driven to the curb One wreath was of natural violets tea roses and carnations among which hung a silver [illegible] The dropping of a pin could have been heard in the Place De La Madeleine as the Germans mounted the steps and walked into the church saluting as they passed the coffin

General Loizillon Minister of War Admiral Avelan and Premier Dupuy, soon after arrived, closely followed by the Field Marshal's two sons There was no ceremony at the church The coffin was placed in the hearse Gen Saussier commander of the troops in Paris, waved his sword and the cavalcade began at 11 10 to move from the church The troops presented arms and the Band of the Republican Guard struck the first notes of [illegible]

Funeral March

There seemed to be no end of the carriages filled with flowers The most conspicuous of all the exquisite pieces was a great wreath of Russian lilies forget-me-nots violets and hearts-ease, tied with blue and white satin ribbons bearing the words "Imperial Mediterranean Squadron" It was the tribute of Russian visitors to the dead soldier All along the route the wreath was the sign for murmurs of admiration The clergy preceded the hearse At the corners walked Premier Dupuy Admiral Reunier, Marine Minister Challemel Lacour and President of the Senate [illegible] holding the cords of the pall

MacMahon's chestnut charger saddled with crepe, was led beside the hearse Three non commissioned officers carrying on cushions the Field Marshal's decorations including the black eagle, came next and soldiers with flags of the Field Marshal's regiments followed them After the members of MacMahon's family came Gen Borius, President Carnot's representative the entire corps of diplomatic officers of the Russian fleet at Toulon, generals of the French army admirals of the French navy and academicians There were few marks of mourning along the route of the procession A lamp post was hung with crepe here and there and a flag fluttered from a window

The crowd was enormous Hundreds of thousands filled the streets up to the military lines and covered the roofs of houses The hearse arrived at Hotel Des Invalides at 12 50 The choir and nave were filled with the great men of France and their guests The priest celebrated low mass The band played a funeral march and the choir chanted requiem The body was taken back to the hearse in the middle of the court and Premier Dupuy made a funeral oration

The hearse was taken after the services to the Esplanade Des Invalides, where 40 000 troops defiled past and saluted The march past occupied nearly two hours At 4 00 the ceremony was over

GREAT DAY AT THE FAIR

New York Held the Boards at Chicago Saturday

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Chicago, Oct 21 New York paid tribute to Chicago and the glories of the White City to-day Thousands of citizens from Manhattan Island came to the Fair to pay their homage of admiration without stint Fairer skies and more pleasant temperature could not have been desired

After speech making speakers were entertained at dinner by the state commissioners in the New York State building A procession of eleven floats was an attractive feature of the big celebration The display of fireworks arranged by Bain on the lake shore was equal to any seen at the fair excepting possibly those of Chicago night The entire lake front was illuminated with over two hundred floating and changing lights which enthused the vast multitude witnessing the last act of the celebration

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22. The Santa Fe Company [illegible]

"COMPROMISE IS SURRENDER."

The Terms of the Proposed Measure in the Senate.

Much Discussion as to Possibility of Becoming Law.

Features of the Act Which Are Not Satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, Oct 21 The details of the forthcoming compromise on the silver question have been practically agreed upon, and at a few moments before 1 o'clock this afternoon, Democratic Senators began pledging themselves in writing to abide by it

The compromise agreed upon provides that the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act shall take effect Oct 1, 1894, and that the bond question shall be eliminated entirely All silver bullion now in the Treasury and all that may be purchased up to the time the repeal goes into effect, together with the seigniorage is to be coined, save the amount necessary to redeem the outstanding silver certificates

It also provides that the four and a half millions of silver which must be purchased under the act shall be coined from time to time, as shall the seigniorage now in the treasury and that which shall grow out of the further purchases All greenbacks and treasury notes under $10 in value shall be retired and silver certificates or coined silver dollars shall take their places

Pledges of Support.

As soon as the committee reached this conclusion, Senators on the Democratic side were sent for, and there was a steady stream of Senators wending their way to the committee room, Mr Voorhees in charge of the bill, having been previously and for some time closeted with the committee

A paper was drawn up addressed to Mr Voorhees, in which Senators pledged themselves that if he would move to amend his bill in accordance with the outlines given above they would support it and then vote for the bill as amended It was a noteworthy fact that the silver Senators signed this document, although there were some who did it under the most vigorous protestations, looking upon the compromise, as they expressed it as an abject surrender of all that for which they had fought these many weeks

Up to 4 o'clock when the Senate took a recess, 37 Senators had signed the pledge addressed to Mr Voorhees to support the measure This number included Mr Martin of Kansas, who has been counted by some as a Populist

By the coinage of the bullion and the substitution of silver certificates for treasury notes and greenbacks below denominations of $10 it is estimated the volume of silver in circulation will be increased by one hundred and sixty millions of dollars

The terms of the Senate compromise for the Repeal bill were not generally known in the executive departments before the hour of closing arrived Secretary Carlisle was handed the substance of the compromise, but he preserved as he has throughout this entire struggle, "a masterly silence" as far as making public his views through the press is concerned

however, and the fact that an outcome was in sight was received with general satisfaction One of the cabinet officers (not Secretary Carlisle) in conversation subsequently expressed the belief that without a clause in the compromise authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue bonds up to the fixed amount $150 000 000 or $200 000,000 at a rate of interest that would readily sell them abroad and not have them returned to us in every little financial flurry, the bill would be unsatisfactory as a financial measure of relief

The clause in the bill providing for the retirement of United States notes and treasury notes below $10 was favorably received in the Treasury Department The retired one dollar two dollar and five dollar notes it is understood of course, are to be converted into higher denominations, so that the present amount of these two classes of money in circulation will not be affected by the change

Notes to be Retired.

The amount of United States notes that will be retired if the proposed compromise goes into effect is as follows

One dollar	$3 [illegible]
Two dollar	[illegible]
Five dollar	[illegible]
Treasury notes of 1890 One dollar	[illegible]
Two dollar $1,[illegible]
Five dollar $[illegible]

Silver certificates above $5 in circulation aggregate about $200 000 000 and under [illegible] about $150 000 000

The plan as now understood contemplates the issue of smaller denominations of silver certificates for the large denominations now in use

The Secretary of the Treasury was heard from during the morning on three different occasions through the agency of a trusted friend, the gentleman so acting appearing before the committee as late as 2 o'clock this afternoon One of the members of the committee when asked about this last visit of the representative of the Secretary of the Treasury whether the compromise would be acceptable to the President, said that it was drawn on the lines of the suggestions that emanated from the Administration itself So far every Democrat who has seen the pledged has signed it

The Republicans say that they are opposed to this sort of a compromise and will vote against it claiming that it is not a repeal of the law such as demanded in the platform of the party The silver Republicans speaking through such men as Senators Wolcott and Teller, say they will not filibuster against any measure upon which the Democrats agree, for that would be futile They will not, however, vote for the bill The Populists Allen Kyle and Peffer are understood ably opposed to the agreement that has been arranged and declare they will not support it

Discussion of the Compromise

WASHINGTON, Oct 22 The probabilities of the proposed compromise upon the silver question becoming a law, were vigorously discussed here to-day Friends of the measure are sanguine A few have not yet signed the request to Chairman Voorhees to offer the substitute for his pending bill and it is still uncertain when it will be presented Silver Senators from the West are by no means satisfied with it They were quoted as saying that they will not offer any obstructive tactics upon it after being allowed an opportunity to vote in favor of the free coinage substitute

The Republican leaders in the House declined to talk for publication on the ground that the terms of compromise are not yet made known Talks with Mr Reed, Mr Perkins, of Illinois and others demonstrated that on one point they are not satisfied and, that was the coinage of seigniorage of the bullion now in the treasury and that of the bullion to be purchased, increasing the currency by that amount and without providing in any way for the purchase of an additional gold reserve to aid in maintaining the parity of the two metals Unless a provision of this sort is made it will be difficult, from present indications, to secure any Republican votes for the compromise in the House

The President's Position

WASHINGTON, Oct 22 A prominent official, not a cabinet officer late to-night gave the following authoritative statement of Mr Cleveland's views as to the proposed compromise measure, which it is expected will soon be brought before the Senate

"The President adheres to the position that the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law should be unconditionally repealed

"The lower house of Congress voted for repeal by an overwhelming majority, a majority in the Senate is in favor of unconditional repeal and the sentiment of the country demands the passage of the pending bill. It is not true that Secretary Carlisle is or has been in favor of the compromise subscribed to by a number of Senators, Saturday. He and other members of the cabinet are opposed to that measure"

TREASURY EMPTY.

Thieves Made a Clean Sweep

HEALDSBURG, Cal, Oct. 22 The safe in the city treasurer's office was found open and empty Friday evening City Treasurer Mulligan was found bound to a tree in the cemetery, unconscious from cold. When revived he said while on the way to the home of his brother-in-law, he was stopped by two men and at the point of a pistol taken to the City Hall and compelled to open the safe

After the men had secured $4,000, they took him to the cemetery and bound him to a tree. Mulligan has been city treasurer [illegible]

YOUNG RUNAWAYS.

Two Boys from Quincy, Mass, Taken by the Police.

Chief of Police F W Gilman received the following telegram Saturday

Police Headquarters Bangor

Gentlemen Please look for two boys who left Boston this morning They will be apt to call at the Bangor Post Office as soon as the train from Boston arrives Both boys wear cadet caps One has a blue suit and the other a grey or brown mixture They are both about fifteen years old light complexioned

Please detain and notify Police Headquarters, Quincy, Mass

As the train from Boston does not reach here until 6 30 P M the chief of police did not expect to find the boys until that time, the telegram having stated that they started from Boston on Saturday morning's train About 1 P M, however, Chief Gilman met Officer Fahey at Pol's corner and the officer called his attention to two boys standing at Warren's corner and said that he believed they were the boys wanted as they answered the description perfectly

Officer Fahey followed up his belief by taking the boys to the police station, where they owned up to Chief Gilman that they were the much wanted boys By judicious questioning Chief Gilman got the entire story of their escapade from them Their names are William Clare and Ernest Baker they belong in Quincy, Mass, and are fifteen years of age Mr James Clare father of the Clare boy is agent of the Live Stock Insurance Company and Baker's father is an engineer on Moon Island

A week ago Saturday young Clare forged an order for $100 on his father at the Quincy Savings Bank and the Baker and a boy named Walter Smith, younger than the other boys started off in a boat and sailed to Boston There they took the evening train and [illegible] paying for the tickets with quite a lavish display of cash and arrived at Portland about 11 P M They passed the rest of the night at the Preble House

They left Portland Monday intending to come to Bangor When Harmon Pond was reached they thought the brethren in Bangor so they alighted from the train They went for a bout [illegible] but not before the train had gone on and left them Monday night they passed at a farm house

Tuesday morning they started to walk to this city At [illegible] they found an unoccupied camp and they decided to make it their headquarters All of last week they spent nights and most of the days at the camp coming into the city for a few hours to get their meals and buy articles of different kinds

They did not stint themselves for old hey not have plenty of money? In their purchases included two expensive bags full of blankets, quilts and clothing of all kinds and two revolvers On Wednesday Clare sent $ [illegible] to the John P Lovell Arms Company, of Boston with an order for three Winchester rifles, three single and three double barrelled shot guns some [illegible] revolvers [illegible] rifles, and ammunition He gave directions for Mr Lovell to send the above express to Bangor and to mark Mr Clarkson on the packages

The next day he changed his mind and sent a telegram to Mr Lovell asking him to return the $100 if he had not sent the arms

Friday night the Smith boy concluded that he had had enough of sporting life and left on the train arriving in Boston Saturday morning Clare gave him $10 to buy his ticket etc The Clare and Baker boys told Chief Gilman that they had started off to go to Canada to get work They had $155 in cash when caught here and the $100 with the John P Lovell Arms Company will be recovered

The letter which was written by Willie Clare Saturday morning was received in Quincy Saturday afternoon It was addressed to his mother, and begged her not to be alarmed at the absence of her son He said that when they first started out they did it for fun The boy said that he was obliged to spend considerable money for food and he would not think of returning home till he was able to pay up every cent with interest He said that he had tried to make money by hunting in the Maine woods but it was too cold there and he decided to go to Canada where he hoped to be able to earn enough money to make up for what he had taken

As soon as the boys were secured Chief Gilman wired to Quincy and Mr Clare arrived on last evening's 6 30 train He took his son and the Boston boy and left on the [illegible] train for the return

A Mystery

Some boys living in the vicinity of Center and Montgomery streets have a shanty in an open field a little way above Montgomery street where they occasionally resort On Saturday they were up there and for some cause were led to look under the shanty and there they made a singular discovery and one for which they are unable to account. It was a small axe with a handle about two feet long This in itself would not have been so strange, although the building was banked up with sods and the person who deposited the axe must have removed some of them in order to do so

What motive there was for secreting the axe is made more mysterious from the fact that the poll of the axe was covered with blood, which was also thickly spattered over the handle, as though some animal had been knocked in the head with such force that the flow of blood was immediate and profuse How long the axe has been there is not known, but it cannot have been long, as there was no rust on it whatever Who can give the key to the mystery? The axe is now in possession of County Attorney Bailey, whose son was one of the finders

Mr Sanford L. Porter, postmaster at West Old Town, was in the city Friday, and left on the evening train for a visit to the World's Fair.

THE LAMB AND WOOL BUSINESS

A Visit to Mr Samuel A Maxfield's Works

A representative of THE WHIG knowing of the large business carried on here in the way of slaughtering lambs for the Boston market by Mr Samuel A Maxfield and believing that an account of the work would be of interest to the readers of this paper, visited the slaughter house of Mr Lysander Palmer, three and a half miles out on Western avenue where the work is done to witness the operations He found five men busily engaged, with the assistance of a boy and it was but the work of a few minutes to transfer two dozen lively lambs into as many carcasses dressed and ready for shipment

The lambs are instantly killed by a blow upon the head instead of the old and barbarous style of cutting their throats, that process immediately following and then the work of skinning and dressing is accomplished with great rapidity Everything about the establishment is kept with the utmost cleanliness and no cleaner nor finer looking lambs find their way to the Boston markets than those sent out by Mr Maxfield Instead of feeding the offal to hogs, none of which are kept here it is all sent to Farrar's phosphate works where it is transformed into chemical manures to raise grass to grow more sheep

There is a large cooling room with a capacity of two hundred, where the carcasses are hung to cool as soon as dressed, and they are run by means of overhead tracks into a fine ice room of equal capacity and the next day are taken to the cars two hundred sheep being killed daily

The cars used for shipment are the Hammond refrigerator cars with a capacity of four hundred and these are kept as scrupulously neat as is everything at the slaughter house

The pelts are taken to Mr Maxfield's wool pulling shop on Parker street where they are stripped of their wool and the skin is tanned

The number of sheep and lambs killed last season by Mr Maxfield was 21 000 and this year will probably be as many giving work to a large number of men

FOOT BALL

Two Games in Bangor this Week

The Bangor High School team and Bowdoin sophomores will line up at Maplewood next Wednesday afternoon and those who attend can feel sure of being excitingly entertained The High school eleven has been practising hard during the fall and although it has not met any strong teams has had no difficulty in not only beating Old Town twice but in keeping the team from scoring The Bowdoin sophomores have a class team which is expected to do good work

The Foxcroft Academy team will play in this city next Saturday against the High School eleven They were beaten Saturday forenoon by the Maine State College team 14 0 The High School boys need the best possible coaching they can get and as many games as they can play for the contest with the Portland High School and Cony High School next month as these teams are strong especially the former

Portland High School beat Biddeford High School 40-0 at Portland Saturday

Folsom, of Old Town, is playing a strong end on the Dartmouth team

Harvard and Yale are getting into good form for their battle at Springfield Mass, and the close game that these teams always play may confidently be expected this year

The Bowdoin team handicapped by being without the services of Capt Fairbanks, who injured his hand, and Bates the full back, went to Boston Saturday and played the beefy and strong team of the Boston Amateur Athletic Association being beaten by a score of 16-8 The Boston Herald in its account of the game says "It was nip and tuck at the South end grounds yesterday afternoon between the beefy B A A team and the plucky Bowdoin's The individual playing of the Boston lads was exceptionally good and the interference was all that could be desired but the Bowdoin men found little difficulty in penetrating the heavy B A A line Both teams were weak in the defensive and strong on the aggressive

For Bowdoin Quimby especially took the honors his tackling was low and sure and he repeatedly made steady gains through B A A's big centre Stubbs, Mitchell and Sykes materially assisted in the ground gaining for the visitors

"The Bowdoin men seemed to take great delight in making a target of Fultz, of the B A A team, who is a graduate of Bowdoin

The teams lined up as follows

B A A		Bowdoin
[illegible]	Centre	[illegible]
	Quarter back
	Half backs
	Full back

Score—B A A 16 Bowdoin 8 [illegible]

The Bowdoin men worked hard in the fore part to long gains by the referee who [illegible] that the [illegible] the ball had not been properly [illegible] The Bowdoin men protested but the referee did not change his decision

The defeat of Cornell by Princeton Saturday 46 to 0 was quite a surprise It is accounted for from the fact that Cornell has not had as long training as [illegible] Princeton and the players were there fore not in as good condition [illegible] points

Maine State College and Colby are to meet soon, probably in this city

The foot ball game at Waterville Saturday between the Hebron Academy eleven and a picked eleven from Colby resulted 23 to 16 in favor of Colby Jordan and Putnam did great work for Colby while the Hebrons played remarkably well considering it was their first game

The Old Town High School team beat Foxcroft Academy 20 0 at Old Town Saturday afternoon

The High School Team

A foot ball critic furnishes THE WHIG with the following estimate of the High School team

The B H S foot ball team as they line up in the field will probably average about one hundred and fifty pounds, which, for a High School is a very heavy team Among the heaviest are Hickson Ford, Palmer, C Sawyer Viszie and Howard all of whom weigh one hundred and fifty five or over Although the team is heavy they do not take proper advantage of their weight in playing, but pay too much attention to around the end plays whereas, with their heavy center they could accomplish more by bucking the line One of the best players is Charles Sawyer who is certainly keeping [illegible] His weight and strength will add much [illegible] as [illegible] should play full back especially should [illegible]

One of the team's greatest weaknesses is their lack of defensive play

When the ball is blocked every man invariably tackles too high and fails utterly because by the man opposed to him

The half backs, Captain Haven Sawyer and George Stetson, are good runners and especially excel in around the end plays Palmer who plays right end is not doing such sure tackling as he did last year, but much is expected of him when the championship games come on later in the season Hickson, the new centre is heavy and will make a good man Ford is an old player and a very fast runner He has a record made this year of 10 3-5 seconds in a hundred yards dash and much is justly expected of him although he tackles too high

Veazie one of the tackles is proving a very good man He defends his position well and tackles low and surely Seavey is an old player and is an expert as quarter back The two Howard brothers are a valuable acquisition to the team both being old players

Quite a number of new players are distinguishing themselves and may make some of the above named players hustle to keep their positions Among these Jordan Snow and Hunt are doing especially good work All who enjoy manly sports should not fail to attend these games, which are very exciting and one is sure to feel an interest in the young defenders of Bangor's athletic standard

AMUSEMENTS

Salvini

To night Salvini will be at the Opera House and the sale of tickets insures a large and representative audience as is fitting upon the occasion of the visit of this sterling actor The play will be "The Three Guardsmen" one of the best if not the best in his repertoire and it is promised that it will be finely staged Among Salvini's many accomplishments which go to make his portrayals of the heroes of romance so realistic is his proficiency with the foils There are very few professors of the art, that can get away with him In many of the larger cities he is the recipient of challenges from those who imagine he is only a "stage fencer," and once in awhile he accepts, though with the exception of Professor Senac, the American champion, no one has defeated him

Frank Mayo

The great favorite Frank Mayo is to appear at the Opera House next Thursday with a new play and an exceedingly strong cast, it is said The following well known people will be in his support Miss Ada Dwyer, Miss Louise Sylvester, Miss Frances Graham, Harry Bell, Edwin F. Mayo, G. F King, William Maguire, Master Loramore and a number of other first class artists Mr Mayo will not produce "Davy Crockett" this season, but instead will present a very clever comedy, which was written especially for Mr. Mayo, and is called "A Matrimonial Deadlock," being one of the most interesting and entertaining of modern comedies, it is said.

It Promises to Be a Great Success

The following, from the Evening Journal of Jersey City, N J, will be of interest to the many friends of Miss Powe in this city

The cooking class at the High School is now in full operation and promises to be a great success It is in charge of Miss Henrietta L Rowe, who was first assistant at the College of Domestic Sciences in Boston The course of study consists of the chemistry of food physiological effect of food cooking of foods marketing and domestic economy The pupils of the first, second, third, fourth and fifth grades will be instructed in this highly valuable addition to the High School Miss Powe will be in attendance two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon each day Each pupil will receive one lesson a week In speaking of the cooking school Principal Sweeney said this morning that it is one of the most valuable acquisitions to the High School ever made

AT THE NOROMBEGA

Enjoyable Sacred Concert Sunday Evening

The Man with the Iron Mask

Some half smothered interest has been aroused by another discovery of the identity of the "man with the iron mask" The literateur Bazeries, who has long been engaged in searching the cipher used by Louis Quatorze in secret state papers announces that his efforts have been crowned with success, and that he has found among certain documents proof that "the man with the iron mask" was Monsieur Deb[illegible]lande, who raised the siege of Coni against royal orders and was subsequently ordered to be imprisoned at Pignerol, where he was shut up at night and allowed exercise by day while masked can look them over and [illegible] count of stock, and view the result of the season s work Although the promising outlook of June 28th has not been fully realized yet the season s work has not been a failure by any means, and as we look about us and see the condition of those in many other avocations I think the farmer has no great reason to complain It has been a favorable fall thus far for doing fall work and preparing for winter, and many farmers have taken advantage of the present financial crisis (which has made help exceedingly plenty) to clear up low and wet places and put in ditches ready for an early start in the spring L W Jose

Charleston—Sweet corn is not raised in this section except for feed for cows and hogs, the yield of yellow corn is about two-thirds of a full crop with the greatest growth of stock (or fodder) we have had for many years The growth of this cereal is on the increase owing very much to the corn planter making the cost of cultivation so much less than the old method of manuring in the hill With the Morgan Spading Harrow, the Eclipse Corn Planter and the [illegible] Harrow I am enabled to raise an acre of corn for ten dollars less than I could the old way There is money in the sure thing [illegible] at the right time Use it when the sun shines and in the middle of the day and you will bless the day you had the courage to fight the common enemy of every farmer—weeds—in this way The time has come when we must manage the farm differently than our fathers If we could put as much faith and energy into our farm work as we do when we hang on the fence at the race track and [illegible] for our favorite horse, there would be very much less cause for the cry of hard times and no harvest in the fall If you wish to live by any profession or trade you must make a study of it Farming is no exception to this rule The following are the prices mostly paid for farm crops Corn 55c oats 40c potatoes 50c hay $12, ox beef fair $6 per hundred lambs $2 to $3 The weather crop bulletin I consider of more than passing notice the import nce of it is tenfold We are enabled to judge of the supply of any produce we may have to dispose of thereby having some guide in setting a price on the same Another advantage is the forecast of the weather whereby we can so arrange our work to avoid much labor and loss and get our crops by storm The forecast of the weather I wish could be continued [illegible] other season It was a few weeks this summer GEO PLUMMER JR

Hampden Center—I see no good No 1 apples in the market those brought in are bruised and wormy the cold spring drought and high winds have ruined the apple crop in this section The hay crop is lighter than last year [illegible] cut well, potatoes are good So on the whole we have no reason perhaps to complain of the season I cannot [illegible] no improvement in your bulletins for 1893 I am much pleased with many of your correspondents in this county and they have grand opportunities to know about the crops Visiting county granges every month gives a large range for observation ALLEN CARTER

Newport—Farmers have had rather a hard season this year The spring was cold and backward and it has been very unfavorable all the season but when we compare our situation with others we ought not to complain We have not even heard of one farm for sale, [illegible] have heard of very many others [illegible] the wall [illegible] also very many others [illegible] out of employment So let us take courage and put in good crops [illegible] and take good care of them [illegible] know there are better times [illegible] we shall have our share of them [illegible] J H Tibbs

Holden—The season has been [illegible] whole a fairly good one [illegible] the farmer has not been troubled much by the panic [illegible] business circles What the farmer has had to sell has brought fairly good prices [illegible] what the farmer has [illegible] profit [illegible] gold [illegible] I have experienced [illegible] profit from the bulletins of the [illegible] and I have no improvement to suggest [illegible] might be [illegible] the crops that have not been taken up this year C H Der[illegible]

Piscataquis

East Dover—In the [illegible] What is the outlook of farming [illegible] for the success of the past season? I would say that in this vicinity and where I have been elsewhere, nothing [illegible] Its true farmers have not realized as much from the sale of [illegible] as in former years the [illegible] the latter so they are low or poor [illegible] The grain crop of barley oats [illegible] and in wheat also [illegible] so far as thrashed, very good [illegible] corn very good, the sweet corn business something of a[illegible] this season Hay [illegible] some The drought [illegible] the ears too short to pay for [illegible] Other fields not so effected yielded very satisfactorily having much fodder to take the place of hay [illegible] as far as dug are reported good [illegible] sound The apple crop is light [illegible] I have started the [illegible] ing fields and put the soil [illegible] condition for plowing which is now being done extensively All the farmers crops [illegible] well [illegible] in the [illegible] F [illegible]

Parkman—I told you [illegible] about my potatoes [illegible] harvested There were [illegible] bushels [illegible] rods Pastures are very short the [illegible] we have had have not been [illegible] feed as they ought The grasshoppers have been a burden [illegible] as fast as it grew Stock is very [illegible] S B DREW

Parkman—A good many have [illegible] quite a good part of their [illegible] the last few days and find that [illegible] better than they expected Potatoes are of a very good quality but are rotting some since [illegible] Many of the farmers are beginning to [illegible] keeping more sheep [illegible] corn and are getting [illegible] ELISHA LIBBY

Washington

Cherryfield—The season has been a fruitful one generally and the weather remarkably favorable for all farm work The hay crop is the most important in this section and shows the greatest fall ing off excepting the apple crop which is not 10 per cent of last year A greater quantity of [illegible] has been secured in good condition [illegible] will be fed by farmers who must sell their English hay Less stock will be wintered and I see no reason why hay should be higher than at present Potatoes are very sound, and the crop is 50 per cent larger than last year Many are looking for the October bulletin to learn the condition of the leading crops through the State The bulletin is have been read carefully and the conclusions of the Secretary are valuable to all who do any amount of farming

D W CAMPBELL

Prescott—It has been raining here for four days with heavy wind from the northeast and still raining October 2d with no appearance of clearing off So cold that stock is kept in during the day Pastures very short Cows nearly dried up Potatoes about two thirds dug and turning out well Grain nearly all threshed and turning out a fair crop Apples a failure

D H SULLIVAN

CHERRYFIELD—Although we have had quite a protracted drouth this season, I think, on the whole, we should feel very well satisfied with the result of the farm The hay crop was rather light, but of a very good quality and harvested in the very best condition and will spend a great deal better than last year on account of its being heavier by one tenth I should judge from the weight of it As a grain year it has been rather better than we have had for some time. I have a good chance to know about grain as I thresh a large part that is raised in this section, and raise as much or more than any other one I raised this year 510 bushels Think this crop should be increased so that a large part of the farmers should raise their own grain and so save the large amount paid out for grain Potatoes have done finely, turning out a large lot of fine sound ones All other vegetables doing well for a dry season, with a good crop of beans, but a very light one of apples On the whole it has proved a very good season for the farmer, we should therefore take courage and make our plans to try to do more next year There is money in the farm and I hope that more of our young men will turn their efforts that way and make our good old State of Maine a more prosperous State. B F WILLEY

Jonesborough—I think the farmers in this vicinity are very well satisfied with their farm crops this year. Grain and all [illegible] have given a bountiful [illegible]

The apples and small fruit were nearly a failure Pastures are giving an abundance of fall feed and all neat stock that was turned to pasture this spring in fair condition, has made growth very fast I have four oxen each [illegible] the chest five inches better than they did the 10th of May Owing to my being located three and one half miles from the post office I have not received many of the blanks in time to report
